Slowly and with feeling

At the rise of the sun yester-day, lit-tle one, You were I'm still hop-ing, some day, when those clouds roll a-way, You'll be near and the world seemed gay. But as shad-ows did fall just as you used to be: That the light from your eyes casting just as gloom o-ver all, Then I knew you had gone a-way. At the blue as the skies, Once a gain will be heav-en to me.

Chorus:

dawn of My Yes - ter - day — You were near and the whole world seemed gay, The birds in the wild wood ne'er ceased — to sing, The whole Winter through seemed as joy - ous as Spring, But as the day grew old, the sun had lost its gold, You had gone and the world seemed cold and grey, At the close of My Yes - ter - day.
